Birds of Prey

Wings

experience the sky

Africa is the most rewarding birding destination in the world. The continent has close to 2,500 recorded bird species, about two-thirds of which are endemic to the continent.

Raptors - birds of prey - are the princes of the bird world. They are charismatic and are among the most fascinating birds to watch. Raptors fly faster, further, higher and more elegantly than other bird species.

This is an incredibly fascinating look into the life of these magnificent creatures.

This activity will be a demonstration of a minimum of three free flying birds of prey and will focus on the following aspects:

- Species diversity.
- Their stage in development (i.e. change in appearance between immaturity and adulthood).
- Male and female differentiations, some showing different colour forms and size variation.
