Drakensburg Hike

Trekking

brehtaking experiences

The majestic Drakensburg rises to over 3 000 meters. Known to the Zulu people as Ukhahlamba, or 'Barrier of Spears', the Mountains of the Dragon provide a magnificent semi-circular border between KwaZulu-Natal and the inland mountain kingdom of Lesotho.

The Drakensburg escarpment is frequently covered in snow in the winter months, transforming the area into a picture-postcard winter wonderland.

Trekkers will be exposed to a variety of wildlife including Bushbuck, Oribi, Mountain Reedbuck, tiny Duiker, and the largest of South Africa's antelope species, the Eland, as well as many others. Enormous Bearded Vultures, fly overhead and baboons can be heard barking from the cliffs.

Trekking in the Drakensburg is an unforgettable experience which promotes bonding, relaxation, team building and clear thinking.
