Overnight Fly Camps

Fly by night

uninterrupted simplicity

Nothing is routine and close encounters are the norm. With all its bush charm, most people find fly-camping a very enriching experience.

The name 'fly camp' is derived from the English phrase 'fly by night', which refers to anything which is temporary. The purpose of having a fly camp is that it allows the client to spend some time in very close proximity to the bush, in a very personal and private environment.

Fly camping is about adventure, not luxury. Tents are lightweight with mosquito mesh sides and a canopy of stars tell their own bedtime story.

It's a magical experience with evenings in the open, at a camp fire with an uninterrupted cacophony of African calls all around.
